COAG’S PLANS: COMPLEX, ENCOURAGING, IMPORTANT

The Communiqué from the Council of Australian Governments shows that there is at last a common understanding of the need for widespread reform of governments’ involvement with health and wellbeing in Australia. The Communiqué covers an impressive range of issues, including a number that relate to Indigenous health and wellbeing. Rural and remote issues in general are not high on the agenda but the health of country people will certainly be improved in the long-term through a number of the proposals.

The full text of the NRHA statement is at http://www.ruralhealth.org.au/nrhapublic/Index.cfm?Category=MediaReleases&Year=2006 and is reprinted below

OTHER COAG NEWS

The described the COAT agenda as a "blurred vision" which delivers in some areas but is seriously flawed in others. Most of the AMA’s concerns are with the Health Workforce initiatives. The full text of the AMA statement is at http://www.ama.com.au/web.nsf/doc/WEEN-6RPBBM

The Rural Doctors Association (RDAA) said that the COAG initiatives are good for rural health. The RDAA statement is at http://www.rdaa.com.au/uploaded_documents/COAG%20initiatives%20good%20for%20rural%20health%20-%20July%202006.htm

The Physiotherapy Association said that COAG’s plan simply doesn’t go far enough. The APA statement is at http://apa.advsol.com.au/

In a separate joint statement, the Australian Dental Association, Australian Physiotherapy Association, Australian Physiotherapy Council, Australian Podiatry Council, Australian Psychological Society and OT AUSTRALIA welcomed the COAG decision to establish a single national registration board for health professionals, and congratulate the governments for retaining discipline-specific experts as the custodians of clinical standards and professional conduct of the respective health professions. 9th NATIONAL RURAL HEALTH CONFERENCE

Up to a thousand people will Stand Up for Rural and Remote Health at the 9th Conference in Albury next March.

Conference themes are:
1 Health across borders - State and professional (including developments along the Murray River). How teamwork is being developed across professional and disciplinary boundaries, and how quality is assured in inter-disciplinary work.

2 A focus on regional and local success stories in rural and remote health. What are their key characteristics and what contribution is made to them by IT and transport? Those relating to Indigenous health are of particular interest. And what have been the key issues where services have not been effective?

3 The politics and economics of early intervention: what are the political or professional constraints and where are the successes? What is the evidence for the benefits of early intervention, and are sufficient resources being directed to it?

4 How do we measure up in rural and remote areas on evidence, access and equity? What is the status of the evidence base in rural and remote health and what are the appropriate measures to be used? Where are the key research gaps? How do rural and remote health services compare across regions and with other nations?

5 What are the particular characteristics of chronic disease in rural and remote Australia: diabetes, obesity, oral and dental disease, mental illness and heart disease? What intervention and management systems work well, including for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people? What are the roles of screening and self-management systems? Can we overcome skill shortages relating to chronic disease?

6 Preparation for and community response to natural disasters. What are (or would be) the rural and remote aspects of drought, flood and fire, avian flu, foot and mouth? How prepared are we in country areas? What are the characteristics of communities and health services which make some regions more resilient?

RURAL HEALTH ON THE ABC
(Extract from ABC Rural Newsletter - http://www.abc.net.au/rural/default.htm)

Safety on the quad bike
They're handy for mustering stock or checking the irrigation pump and so common on farms that many of us probably start up and ride away without a second thought. But the ATV, quad, or four-wheel, bike can be extremely dangerous.

A LESSON IN SAFETY FOR YOUNG FARMERS
Tom Nightingale (Shepparton, VIC)
And while we're on the subject of staying healthy....are younger farmers a safer bunch than the older generations? It's been Farm Safety Week across the country.
About 150 people a year die in Australian farm accidents. Most are aged over 50.
There was another death this week, with a 77-year-old western Victorian man killed when a tank fell on him. Tom Nightingale visiting a training session for young farmers in north-central Victoria, and found the next generation is taking more notice of the safety messages.

AIHW REPORTS

Psychology Labour Force 2003
This is the first AIHW report that presents statistics on the size and growth of registered psychologists in Australia. The report is based on the 2002-2003 AIHW surveys of psychologists in New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia and the Australian Capital Territory. Information presented in the report includes an overview of the number of psychologists, their demographic and work characteristics and supply; their main clients; and trends in the number of students completing undergraduate psychology courses. Registration numbers are used to show recent growth in the profession. The report then provides a profile of employed psychologists in each surveyed state and territory.

Occupational Therapy Labour Force 2002-2003
Occupational therapists are allied health professionals who teach people how to return to normal activities after injury or illness, using therapy and rehabilitation. This report presents statistics on occupational therapists in Australia. It is based on the main findings of the 2002-2003 national surveys of occupational therapists. Information presented in the report includes an overview of the demographic characteristics of occupational therapist respondents, such as their age/sex profile, and their work characteristics, such as clinical specialty, work setting and hours worked.

CHILDREN AND FARMS A DANGEROUS MIX (19-Jul-2006)

Children under 15 years account for 21% of all farm injuries, an Australian report suggests.

ABUSE CLAIMS 'OVERSTATED'

A SENIOR Northern Territory police officer has said claims of child sex abuse at a remote Aboriginal community have been overstated, after a taskforce found no evidence of abuse. A joint NT Police and Family and Community Services (FACS) taskforce has interviewed almost 300 people over claims of widespread child sexual abuse at Mutitjulu, an Aboriginal community at the base of Uluru.

NT Police Superintendent Colleen Gwynne said the taskforce had gathered a significant amount of information from a wide range of people, both in the NT and interstate, following claims aired on ABC TV.

“We have found some evidence of petrol being provided to children,” Supt Gwynne said. “We haven’t found any evidence of petrol being provided for sexual favours. There’s certainly no evidence there that the petrol is being provided to entice children to provide sexual favours, none whatsoever.”

Meanwhile the Federal Government has launched a new police taskforce to target indigenous violence and child abuse, using special powers previously directed at organised crime gangs. The Commonwealth and state and territory leaders signed off on the National Indigenous Violence and Child Abuse Intelligence taskforce at the Council of Australian Governments (COAG) meeting in Canberra.

These data cubes from the ABS show average weekly expenditures by households by broad geographic region in each State. The data show, for example, that:

* rural households spent an average of $850.79 per week in 2003-04, compared with $930.25 for metropolitan households as a share of income, rural households spent much less on housing (11.9% as against 17.3% in metropolitan areas) but more on transport (18.9% compared with 14.7%).

SPREADING THE MESSAGE FOR CHILD SAFETY ON FARMS
(Extract from RIRDC Online - subscribe at martin.field@rirdc.gov.au?subject=RIRDC%20Online%20-%20%20Subscribe)

A workshop by the Farm Health and Safety Joint Research Venture has evaluated media campaigns targeting child safety on farms. Drawing on findings from focus groups, participants noted that the campaigns conducted by FarmSafe Australia had been successful in building awareness and changing behaviour, and suggested ways that they could improved further. Speaking in support of the workshop Parliamentary Secretary for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry, Sussan Ley, said, “We must work towards ways of minimising the deaths associated with farm dams and fatal accidents with motor vehicles and tractors...If their efforts can save one child from a preventable death or accident, the workshop will have been a success.” More information at http://www.psmaff.gov.au/releases/06/06037sl.html

YEAR OF THE OUTBACK FOCUSES ON RURAL YOUTH

Australian Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry, and Year of the Outback Ambassador, Peter McGauran, said it was critical to hear first-hand the views, concerns and hopes young people have for the future in the Year of the Outback.

A series of workshops and surveys will be held around the country on the themes discussed at the inaugural National Young Farmers Forum held last September in Canberra, and the issues identified recently by the National Council of Young Farmers.

Mr McGauran said a $100,000 project, funded by the Federal Government, would develop recommendations that can be used by government, industry and rural communities to set realistic goals for the future and find solutions to issues currently affecting young people living in outback Australia.

Information on the workshop locations, and how to participate in the project’s surveys, is available by calling 1800 686 175 or emailing industrypartnerships@daff.gov.au

Subject: Using Evidence Symposium, October 19-20 2006, Melbourne

The Using Evidence: Using Guidelines Symposium will provide health professionals and organisations with practical solutions for getting clinical practice guidelines into day-to-day practice, including:

* Knowing which guideline recommendations to focus on
* Understanding how to identify and address barriers to guideline implementation
* Selecting evidence-based interventions to implement guidelines
* Deciding the right indicators to measure uptake of guidelines and patient outcomes
* Planning the resources and support needed for guideline implementation.

Symposium Themes

FOCUS: How do we decide which guideline recommendations to tackle first?
BARRIERS: Why does our practice depart from best practice? Could we change?
IMPLEMENTATION: How do we select evidence-based interventions to implement guideline recommendations?
MEASUREMENT: How do we decide what to measure and what information to feed back, in order to support guideline implementation?

The symposium will be held at Melbourne's Langham Hotel with key note speakers Professor Susan Michie and Dr Brian Mittman and have workshops on a range of issues including how to identify and address barriers to guideline implementation.

Subject: Anti-Poverty Week 2006 - An Invitation to Health Workers

Anti-Poverty Week begins this year on Sunday 15 October and finishes on Saturday 21 October. As usual, it includes International Anti-Poverty Day which has been designated by the UN as October 17. The Week focuses on poverty around the world, especially in the poorest countries but also in wealthier countries such as Australia. This year, Health and Poverty is a major theme.

The main aims of the Week are to:
* strengthen public understanding of the causes and consequences of poverty and hardship;
* encourage research, discussion and action to address these problems.

We hope that Health Workers throughout Australia will organise something during the Week, whether it is a big event or a more modest activity. We have suggested Thursday 19 October as a special day for Health and Poverty. But you are very welcome to hold activities on whichever days of the Week suit you. Here are a few ideas:
* Launch a health campaign to address poverty-related health issues
* Arrange for a guest speaker to visit your organisation
* Conduct a survey on health and poverty-related issues
* Hold a fundraiser night at your organisation, with proceeds going to a local health or welfare organisation
* Publish a special Anti-Poverty Week edition of a health newsletter or magazine

How can Anti-Poverty Week support an event?
* A listing on the Activities page of our website
* Anti-Poverty Week posters to help promote the activity
* An electronic information kit on Australian and international poverty.
* Information and advice on how to find more about poverty and possible speakers for events
* Contact details of people planning activities in your area

Subject: WHA & CHA CONFERENCE

The joint conference of Women's Hospitals Australasia and Children's Hospitals Australasia will be held at The Country Club Resort, in the delightful city of Launceston, Tasmania, 13-17 November this year.
This year's conference theme is TEAM and will explore how effective teams can significantly improve quality of care and service delivery. Given the increasing trend toward health service redesign, and a move away from hierarchical structures, the health care "team" is probably the most important consideration in advancing healthcare over the next decade. As technology advances, skill mix needs change, workforce shortages increase the need for flexibility within the health workforce, and as consumer expectations increase they become a fundamental member of the healthcare team.

Subject: ACRRM Call for Abstracts for the ACRRM 4th Scientific Forum

Medical practitioners, specialists, allied health professionals, academics and students are invited to submit abstracts for Australia's leading medical conference in health care in rural and remote settings.

The Australian College of Rural and Remote Medicine (ACRRM) will conduct its 4th Scientific Forum at the University of Adelaide on 16-19 November 2006 and will present research, forum discussions, plenary sessions and clinical workshops specifically on the practical implementation of Rural and Remote Medicine.

ACRRM Academic Director Assoc. Prof. Elizabeth Chalmers said the conference content would examine the latest thinking and modern clinical practices for caring for Australians in regional and rural Australia.

She said the theme "Practising Rural and Remote Medicine – Moving Forward" captured the positive future for the discipline.

Assoc. Prof. Chalmers also said that speakers from a variety of professional groups would be invited to this year's conference, including indigenous health experts, nurses, medical specialists, and allied health practitioners, as each had an important role to play in the collaborative provision of medical care in the bush.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON "DIVERSITY IN AGEING" ANNOUNCED FOR SYDNEY

The Australian Association of Gerontology (AAG) has announced it will hold its 2006 National Conference in Sydney during November. To be held 22 – 24 November 2006 at the Wesley Centre the Conference will focus on the theme 'Diversity in Ageing.'

The conference is the major annual activity of the Australian Association of Gerontology (AAG), which brings together professionals interested in promoting education and research into all aspects of ageing. The Association encourages cross disciplinary exchange of ideas amongst professionals including clinicians, therapists, social scientists, economists and demographers. The anticipated 350 delegates are expected to include medical practitioners, researchers, nurses, social workers, psychologists, social scientists, music therapists, economists, demographers, geographers and consumers interested in the field of ageing research, education, service provision and policy.

Further information on the Conference is available on http://www.aag.asn.au/conference2006.htm or by contacting the Conference Managers on 1300 368 783 or email aag@eastcoastconferences.com.au

Media Release
15 July 2006
COAG's plans: complex, encouraging, important

The Communiqué from the Council of Australian Governments shows that there is at last a common understanding of the need for widespread reform of governments' involvement with health and wellbeing in Australia. The Communiqué covers an impressive range of issues, including a number that relate to Indigenous health and wellbeing. Rural and remote issues in general are not high on the agenda but the health of country people will certainly be improved in the long-term through a number of the proposals.

John Wakerman, Chairperson of the NRHA, acknowledged the leadership of the States and Territories and their obvious enthusiasm for joint work with the Commonwealth.

"In the health sector there is such a history of discord between governments that yesterday's collaborative outcome feels like a breath of fresh air. We are still concerned about the absence of a strategic framework for developments in the interdisciplinary health team, and the lack of a long-term vision for rural and remote areas. But the plan outlined yesterday is broad and focused on some of the key health priorities," he said.

Dr Wakerman said the Alliance is keen to see the detailed proposals for mental health services in regional, rural and remote areas. "We must be careful to ensure that any additional incentives for training and practice in mental health do not have the perverse effect of draining even more mental health workers from rural areas."

"The special focus on chronic diseases is sensible and important. The promise to reduce the prevalence of key risk factors contributing to chronic disease looks terrific. We would like to see the fine print and help make sure that rural and remote issues are properly accounted for," Dr Wakerman said.

"We also have a very strong and obvious interest in the commitment to provide options to improve service delivery in rural and remote areas by the end of 2006. This is presumably a reference to the Federal Budget initiatives for selected towns of less than 7,000. The Alliance is very keen to support the development and roll-out of these plans."

"Following this breath of fresh air, governments now face two challenges. To convert commitments into action on the ground, without letting any of the 'fine print' slow them down. And to ensure that there is a high level of consultation on implementation with people from the professional groups and the areas that will be affected."

Rural people will be glad to know that one of the six members of the new COAG Reform Council will have 'regional and remote experience'.

The Alliance also has a particular interest in:
* the enhanced infrastructure, and broader system, for placement and postgraduate training of the extra medical and nursing students;
* increased rural exposure in the training of medical specialists;
* the references to special incentives for the training of dentists (the Alliance wants to see the Commonwealth involved in this as well as the States);
* the promise of "better consultation" between the States and Commonwealth on health-related university places;
* a single national registration scheme for health professionals and the fact that "other professional groups (including Aboriginal Health Workers) may be added over time";
* a single national accreditation scheme for health education and training;
* a national process for the assessment of overseas-trained doctors;
* the Commonwealth's intention to provide rural medicine with formal recognition under Medicare as a generalist discipline; and, most importantly,
* the initiatives relating directly to improving the health and wellbeing of Indigenous people, such as governments' "long-term, generational commitment" to overcome Indigenous disadvantage, the commitment to closing the health, education and learning gaps between Indigenous and non-Indigenous children, and further measures to address alcohol and substance misuse, including through additional resources for treatment and rehabilitation services in regional and remote areas.
